Need To Know

A SUPERVISION notice about food safety hangs on the wall of each restaurant in Jiading District.

The top part of the notice describes the related regulations of food safety that public dining places need to abide by. The bottom part shows a smiling face, a poker face or a crying face.

The purpose of the notice is to indicate whether the place has qualified conditions for dining. Customers can read through the little faces to consider if they need to go somewhere else.

Up to now five streets in Jiading have introduced such warning methods, including Chengzhong Road, Xinyuan Road, Tesco Street, Cangchang Road and Guiyuan Road.

The dining places along these streets have all been assessed in terms of food safety. They are required to post certificates and supervision notices. Also they should follow other regulations as well, in terms of clear division of food processing area and equipment, staff health and training qualifications, etc.

If you find any food safety problems during dining, or any dining places that ignore the regulations above, please call 962-727. The hotline is available all day.

Q: If I meet food safety problems during dining in restaurants, who should I turn to? — Lily

A: Firstly you need to keep the food in its original, untouched state and inform the restaurant manager instantly. If no health problem is caused, you can refer to the "Law of the People's Republic of China on the Protection of Consumers' Rights and Interests" and negotiate with the restaurant to solve the problem. On the other hand, if health problems occur, you should gather all proof including your medical record and the food outlet receipt. If suspected cases of food poisoning occur, you should call Jiading Food Safety Supervision Department immediately for a timely investigation. The hotline number is 5999-8655.

medical facilities and veterinary drugs for animal treatment.

5. It must have medical registration, epidemic reports, prescription medicines and disinfection treatment. Once meeting the conditions mentioned above, you can go to Jiading Veterinary Health Supervision Department to get the application form for a Shanghai Animal Treatment License. Fill in the form and provide related material. You will get an Animal Treatment License after site investigation, then you can apply for a business license with the Animal Treatment License.

Q: How long will a health certificate be valid if a foreigner applies for a resident permit? — Sandy

A: A foreigners' health certificate is issued by Shanghai Entry-exit Inspection and Quarantine Bureau and valid for six months. Foreigners with a valid resident permit can be exempted from health certificates during extension applications. Once a permit expires, those who re-apply within three months can also be exempted. Otherwise, a new certificate is needed.

Q: I want to open a pet clinic in Jiading. What procedures should I go through? Are there any extra qualifications for foreigners? — Ron

A: According to the "Animal Epidemic Prevention Law," "Management Methods for the Checking of Animal Epidemic Prevention Conditions" and "Shanghai Canine Raising Management Methods," individuals, foreign companies and joint venture companies that conform to the following conditions are allowed to set up pet clinics:

1. It must have suitable fixed sites for animal treatment that conform to public health requirements.
2. It must have at least two registered veterinarians and a number of veterinary assistants.
3. It must set up independent areas for medical, surgical, laboratory, pharmacy, isolation and other purposes.
4. It must have necessary
